Executive Biographies

Kari Olson
President
Front Porch Center for Innovation and Wellbeing

In addition to serving as president of the Front Porch Center for Innovation & Wellbeing, Kari Olson is the chief innovation and technology officer for Front Porch®. As president of the award winning Front Porch Center, she explores innovative uses of technology to empower individuals to live well, especially in their later years.

Kari is actively involved in the Aging 2.0 Alliance and Leading Age Center for Aging Services Technologies (CAST) where she is currently serving as a commissioner and steering committee member. She has also served as a CAST Boomer Technology Needs Research chair, co-chair of the Provider Workgroup and Leading Age Innovation Cabinet member. She speaks nationally about Front Porch's work in innovation and technology.

She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from UCLA.

Davis Park
Director
Front Porch Center for Innovation and Wellbeing

Davis Park develops and directs all of the Front Porch Center's technology initiatives and programs.

Davis brings more than 15 years of program development experience with a diverse set of skills in technology implementation and deployment to senior, low-income, and other underserved communities.

Davis is an inaugural member of the Zero Divide ZFellows program and serves on several boards and committees dedicated to promoting technology access, adoption, and policy.

He holds a master's degree from UCLA's Urban Planning Program and a bachelor's degree in anthropology from UC Berkeley.
